
EDITORIAL

Introducing the Journal of the Society of Internationally Educated Nurses

Dr. Emilene Reisdorfer, Editor-in-Chief

Dr. Sawsan Abuhammad, Editor-in-Chief

Welcome to the Journal of the Society of Internationally Educated Nurses!

Introducing a new journal to the public is no small feat, especially when the majority of readers are esteemed academics or professionals from the health and immigration sectors, who undoubtedly hold high expectations for this information platform. The Journal of the Society of Internationally Educated Nurses (JSIEN) stands as a beacon, offering a global stage for peer-reviewed research and scholarly works aimed at addressing pertinent issues concerning internationally educated nurses (IENs).

Conceived by the Society of Internationally Educated Nurses in North America (SIENNA), the JSIEN is a vital component in the pursuit of fostering a tight-knit network and support system for all IENs who have migrated to North America or are contemplating doing so. As part of SIENNA, the JSIEN commits to the same ethical standards. We are an immigration neutral journal dedicated to supporting all internationally educated nurses who migrated or planning to migrate in North America (USA, Canada, and beyond) to ensure that they have a community of network, advocates, and resources throughout their journey.

Our mission is to offer a platform for the dissemination of knowledge addressing pertinent issues concerning internationally educated nurses (IENs). Through our diverse publication formats, we aim to inspire and empower IENs in achieving their professional aspirations.

The journal welcomes a diverse array of submissions, including original research, literature reviews, short communications, commentaries, and letters to the editor. A dedicated section is reserved for networking and success stories, where authors can share their experiences, providing inspiration and guidance to fellow IENs, and fostering opportunities for networking and mentorship.

Initially, the Journal will be published annually, recognizing the substantial hurdles and the journey ahead to establish itself as a premier scientific publication in the field. The collective drive of our colleagues and the unwavering enthusiasm of our editorial team serve as pillars of support in realizing this ambitious endeavor.

Dear reader, welcome aboard the Journal of the Society of Internationally Educated Nurses (JSIEN). We trust that your engagement with our publication will not only enrich your understanding but also bring fulfillment. We extend an open invitation for your participation—share your studies, insights, and suggestions with us, and help us in spreading the reach of this journal among your peers. Together, let us chart new paths in advancing the discourse surrounding internationally educated nurses

Dr. Emilene Reisdorfer, RN, BScN, MPH, PhD
Editor-in-Chief

Dr. Sawsan Abuhammad, RN, BScN, PhD
Editor-in-chief